

A Haiku Week in Austin November 2019

By

John Paul Campbell III

November 8, 2019
Lunch, Bouldin Creek Café, Austin, Texas

A purple-haired server with rings in her lip
Brings chipotle-pecan tacos with quinoa-collard dip.
For vegan this hip, you have to take a trip.

November 9, 2019
Saturday Farmers' Market, Republic Square, Austin

Young sellers of hemp juice and holistic mung beans
Display perma-culture turnips and micro-biome greens.
Regenerative Agriculture to restore our poor genes.

November 12, 2019
Dinner, Loro Restaurant, Austin, Texas

After cocktails of Kosmos with yuzu infusion,
Arrive bavettes flash-grilled with shishito profusion.
Smoke-house collusion from Japan-Texas fusion.

November 13, 2019
Dinner, Old Thousand Restaurant, Austin, Texas

A cowboy wait-person under a Chinese red light
Serves hipsters and lawyers and a pink-haired young sprite,
Stabbing chopsticks with might into Buddha's Delight.

November 14, 2019
Lunch, Google Staff Dining Room, Austin, Texas

Millennial futurists above floor twenty,
Having reached the heights of the young cognoscenti,
Lunch upon Risotto with Horns of Plenty.

November 14, 2019
Apple Store, North Domain, Austin, Texas

Within their pristine maple and glass-fronted store,
Tee-shirted staff sell smartphones galore
And Augmented Reality to those needing more.

